Schools, cities strike it rich?

By Andy Sloring
Staff writer

SPRINGFIELD — Local school districts and city governments will get an infusion of cash if a tax measure passed yesterday by the House of Representatives makes it into law.

The House passed a two-year surcharge on the Illinois income tax that would bring in an estimated $726 million a year, to be divided equally between schools and local governments.

The measure was introduced by Speaker of the House Mike Madigan, D-Chicago, and co-sponsored by Rep. Sam Wolf, D-Granite City. It provides for a surcharge of 46 percent on personal income (currently taxed 2.5 percent) and .736 percent on corporate income (currently taxed 4 percent). The measure passed 60-19 on Wednesday, with no Republicans voting for it, Wolf said.

It now goes to the Senate, where a narrow Democratic majority can pass it if every one of the Democrats votes for it.

House Majority Leader Jim McPike, D-Alton, said Senate President Philip Rock, D-Chicago, had promised that the Senate would vote on it within two weeks. McPike said passage may hinge on whether Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, of the 56th District recovers sufficiently from a current illness in time to cast his vote.

McPike said the proposal added $363 million to the state education budget, for a total increase of $708 million. He said one-third of it would go to state colleges and the rest to elementary and high schools.

"This is one of the best concepts I've seen in the 14 years I've been here," Wolf said, adding that he expects it to pass the Senate. "What (Gov. Jim) Thompson will do with it, I don't know. I think he will have a tough time vetoing it."

A spokesman for Thompson's office said the governor held a "summit meeting" last night with legislative leaders, but had not indicated whether he would sign the measure.

"We're a long way from that," said David Fields. "The governor has to see what the details are. The speaker sprung it on us and rammed it through the House."

Another aide to Thompson said the governor would probably want to see the measure modified to provide for some relief in property taxes. Barry Hickman said that overall the governor was "receptive to the idea" and called it "a sign of progress."

What the measure means to local school districts and governments:

•School District 9 (Granite City) would get an additional $1,639,000 in Fiscal Year 1990, or about a 17 percent increase. The city would get an additional $1,152,423.

•School District 12 (Madison) would get an additional $308,600, or about 11 percent. The City of Madison would get an additional $165,937.

•School District 3 (Venice) would get an extra $130,700, or about 26 percent. The City of Venice would get an additional $108,594.

Local leaders were happy when they received the news.

District 9 Superintendent Glib Walmesley said, "It's just excellent news for education in the state and District 9. It will help ensure the financial stability of the district," which he said is now about $3.5 million in debt.

Walmesley said his only reservation about the measure is that the increases would only last for two years. He said he hoped the surcharge could be made permanent. Walmesley noted that yesterday (See RICH7, Page 4A)

Cruse attacks streets

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Mayor Von Dee Cruse told aldermen Tuesday that the biggest problem in the city is "It just don't work with an elected superintendent of streets."

Cruse told Street Superintendent Mac Warfield: "We know what our problem is."

When the aldermen went for (spending) $50,000 a ward (for street repairs), Warfield, you just sat there and never said a word.

That's not a street program, but a political slush fund.

You play the council like a poker game. You draw and draw and draw.

Cruse's remarks came in the midst of a heated discussion of the street department at a City Council meeting. The discussion was triggered by a recent interview with Warfield published in the Press-Record/Journal.

After the meeting, Warfield said he had held his temper and Council wants report

GRANITE CITY — The City Council, for the third time in a year, has passed a resolution to require the street superintendent to file a monthly activity report.

Street Superintendent Mac Warfield said, after the meeting, that no street superintendent had ever filed a monthly report. He said the type of report the aldermen were talking about would be several inches thick and that the only thing the aldermen would do with it is to vote to put it on file.

But Warfield said he would put together a report.

The resolution came at the end of a meeting that included a long, heated discussion about the street department.

The discussion began when 7th Ward Alderman Emerald Dawes said he agreed with Warfield's statements in a recent Press-Record (See STREETS, Page 10A)

He was a director of the Mid-America Fire and Marine Insurance Co. and was past secretary of the Country Life, Mutual and Casualty insurance firm.

Secretary of the Long Lake Fire District from 1955 to 1971, Mr. Engelke was a school board member and secretary before consolidation of area schools into School District 9.

Parents: Retain principal

MADISON — A public hearing on the reassignment of Harris Elementary School Principal David Becherer to a teaching position in the next school year attracted about 70 people Wednesday night.

They jammed into the board office and spilled over into the entrance hall. Most supported Becherer.

A date for a special meeting, at which a final decision will come from the board, will be set during tonight's regular board meeting.

Becherer, who has worked in the district for nearly 19 years, has been the principal at Harris for the last eight years. Becherer remained silent until nearly the end of the hearing and was represented by attorney Staci M. Yandle.

Board President John Hamm III said the board is considering naming Laveria Long, an assistant principal at Madison High School, as the Harris principal.

Becherer contends that an evaluation of him was conducted without his knowledge. He says that while he was presented with a list of "concerns" regarding his performance, concerns which prompted his reclassification, he maintains that they are unjustified.

"There are no complaints, no memos and nothing derogatory listed in Mr. Becherer's personnel file," Yandle said. "The purpose of this purported evaluation is a smokescreen for the board's real motive for Mr. Becherer's reclassification."

Despite several requests from the audience, Hamm would not discuss the basis of the board's allegations.

"I've been directed by our attorney (John Papa) not to discuss those due to legalities and the Privacy Act," Hamm said.

GC barber takes a little off the top at hospital

You've heard about doctors making house calls, but how about barbers paying visits to the hospital to take care of their customers?

For the past three years, Emerald Dawes, a retired barber and current Seventh Ward alderman in Granite City, has been visiting St. Elizabeth Medical Center once or twice a week to take care of the hair needs of long-term patients staying in the Skilled Nursing Unit.

"I go whenever a patient needs a haircut," he said. "I come up anyway to visit twice a week."

Dawes, who once owned and operated the Bellemore Village Barbershop, refuses to accept any pay for his work and says his reward is "the many blessings the Lord has given."

Besides serving as an alderman on and off since 1967, Dawes was city inspector for eight years.

Cutting hair at the medical center all started innocently enough. "A customer's wife asked me to come up to St. Elizabeth's one day a few years back to cut her husband's hair, and that's how I got started cutting the patients' hair," he recalled.

One head of hair soon led to another.

Judy Johnson, a unit secretary on the Skilled Nursing Unit, said Dawes does a "tremendous service" to the medical center and its patients.

"He's just as nice as can be," she said.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Sometimes a consumer will order merchandise from a merchant, pay for the goods, and become dissatisfied with the purchase when the goods are delivered. The question sometimes arises as to what remedy is available to the buyer if the seller breaches the contract between the parties. A recent case involving a cabinet-maker and a homeowner will help to demonstrate how a consumer should proceed when there is a breach of contract by the merchant.

In this case, a homeowner and a cabinetmaker entered into an oral contract whereby the craftsman would make ten cabinets for a total purchase price of $3,200. When the first three cabinets were finished, the purchaser paid the entirety of the purchase price and awaited the delivery of the other cabinets. Several months later, two more cabinets were presented to the purchaser, but these cabinets did not match the first three.

At this point, the homeowner informed the cabinetmaker that he wanted his money refunded. The workman agreed to this and made a partial payment, but never paid the balance. Despite repeated demands by the purchaser, the craftsman continually refused to reimburse the balance owed by him.

What options are available to the homeowner? He could bring a small claims complaint against the craftsman. The Court in this case would probably find that the cabinetmaker had breached his contract and enter a judgment against the defendant for the balance of the purchase price plus court costs.

The real problem facing the homeowner in this case is whether he can collect on the judgment. The homeowner indicated that the cabinetmaker was on the verge of bankruptcy and had no assets. Since the craftsman was self-employed, it would be impossible to garnish the wages. Perhaps the lesson to be learned from this example is that the buyer should not pay the full purchase price until the goods are delivered and known to be satisfactory.

In cases such as this, the buyer frequently finds it impossible to collect on the judgment and therefore gives up pursuing the seller. Perhaps the lesson to be learned from this example is that the buyer should not pay the full purchase price until the goods are delivered and known to be satisfactory.

Before the end of the meeting, however, Becherer directed Yandle to read the letter dated March 31 that he received from Superintendent Dan Kostencki outlining Becherer's alleged shortcomings.

Six issues were addressed. They were:

...functioning as an effective leader of your staff; lack of confidence in ability to perform administrative functions.

...providing clear lines of communication with staff.

...complaints of partiality in treatment of staff.

...problems brought to his attention have not been handled in a timely manner.

...not carried out board-administrative directives.

...often appear to be in direct opposite with board-administrative goals and thoughts.

About 20 parents, six teachers and Becherer's secretary gave sparkling testimonials to his character and outstanding performance as a principal. Several persons credited Becherer with not only meeting all his duties but exceeding them in a highly commendable way.

"Why are you gonna get rid of Mr. Becherer?" an 8-year-old boy asked before breaking into tears.

Two parents spoke against Becherer, one of them assailing the choice of a field trip destination.

A mother, who had been accused by Becherer of abusing her child, was declared out of order by Hamm, was asked to leave, and was escorted out. She returned, attempting to speak again, and once again was declared out of order, was asked to leave and was escorted out again by Ed Newsome, board secretary.

day's action by the House means nothing until it's passed by the Senate and signed by Gov. Thompson.

"But certainly we're optimistic," Walmsley said.

Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse and Madison Mayor John Bellico were both enthusiastic at the news. Both said their cities had suffered economically since federal revenue sharing was discontinued several years ago.

"This is going to be a tremendous boost," Cruse said.

"Thank God for it," Bellico said.

Venice Mayor Tyrone Echols could not be contacted.

Cruse said he would probably favor spending the additional money on upgrading the city's sanitation and engineering departments. The city's budget for the fiscal year that ended April 30 was about $11 million.

Bellico said the money would help replace lost rents from the Stephen Maeras Industrial Park. Rent abatements scheduled for the second 20 years of tenancy go into effect next year, representing lost income to the city of about $92,000. The city's total budget last year was just over $900,000.

"It's something all the schools have been praying for and all the communities have been looking forward to," Bellico said.

Cruse said he thought taxpayers would support the measure.

27 years of dedicated work recognized by Hall of Fame

Carmen Breckner of English Place accepted a posthumous award for her husband, Audelle "Harry" Breckner, who was inducted into the Granite City Sports Hall of Fame on May 15.

The award was presented at the third annual awards banquet at the St. Gregory Armenian Center in Granite City. The plaque recognized Breckner's contribution as a player, coach and organizer "which has helped to develop the tradition of excellence in sport in our community resulting in memorable performances, legends and legacies."

Breckner was credited with helping to organize the Mitchell Athletic Club 27 years ago. Initially, he secured the land from St. Elizabeth Church for a playing field. With the cooperation of the Tri-Cities YMCA, he developed the sports agenda, including the current youth baseball and soccer programs of Mitchell, and he assisted in organizing girls' soccer in the Quad-City area.

Breckner was a full-time employee of Granite City Steel and had six children, but still made time to coach countless children. He also volunteered to serve as an umpire and as a coach at the games.

Each year he coordinated the Mitchell Fall Festival, which provides money to support athletic programs.

2 Timothy 4:17 ... "Notwithstanding the Lord was with me, and strengthened me."

The testimony of the Apostle Paul without a doubt one of the greatest in the world. Here is a man totally opposed to God and strictly devoted to his own form of religion. God reveals himself to Paul on the road to Damascus and he then turns around and opposes his former religion and gives himself completely to God. In fact, Paul counts all things less that he might gain Christ.

When Paul started for God, he never turned back against Him. He sacrificed much, he suffered much, yet he remained faithful. God rewarded Paul for his steadfastness. By Paul's own words, "The Lord was with me and strengthened me." Could we ask for more than this?

God will be with you. He will strengthen you. Make your total commitment to Him.

Dixon fights fighter plane plan

By Jason Moody and Michael M. Phillips
P-R/J Washington bureau

WASHINGTON — While lecturing his colleagues on the Senate floor for nearly two hours Thursday and Friday, Sen. Alan Dixon managed to show how the plan to co-develop the FSX fighter plane with Japan relates to the plight of former brewery workers in his hometown of Belleville.

Many towns, similar in size to Belleville, would be economically devastated if Japan is allowed to copy U.S. aerospace technology and eventually oust America in competition in this field, Dixon said.

"You are looking at a senator who understands that and went through that experience this year," the Illinois Democrat said, referring to the closing of Belleville's Stag Brewery.

Before it closed, Dixon told lawmakers, the Belleville brewery was the city's biggest employer next to the two hospitals.

"I am compelled to say that a lot of what we are concerned about here flows from those kinds of experiences that occur over and over again for a variety of reasons all over America," he said.

Dixon has been a vocal opponent of President George Bush's proposal to share the United States' advanced aerospace technology with the Japanese by jointly developing a new multi-purpose fighter plane based on an improved version of the U.S.-made F-16.

In addition to introducing a resolution to overturn the Bush

'Don't be fooled into thinking (the Japanese) are going to give us any breaks ... The Japanese will get the business and the Japanese will keep the business and the folks that were building this in Parsippany, New Jersey ... I love the name Parsippany.'

Sen. Alan Dixon

administration's proposal, Dixon controlled floor discussion on the issue for about two hours Thursday and Friday.

Dixon pointed to a New Jersey company that produces components for the F-16 and could lose its contract as a result of the Bush proposal because a Japanese firm would be given preferential treatment.

"I simply want to say on behalf of the 40,000 people of Belleville, Ill.," he said, "We are on this floor expressing as warmly as we can our regard and our concern for the 40,000 people of Parsippany, N.J., and for others similarly situated in America who will see these jobs go away."

Backers of the joint development arrangement say Japan will probably develop the plane on its own if the United States declines to participate.

"If they want to build an airplane, let them build an airplane," countered Dixon. "I am for competition, but I am not for giving them everything that we have to help them get competitive."

Despite Dixon's concern, a committee vote went against him, 8-8, regarding the FSX project.

His main goal was to persuade fellow senators not to allow Japan access to American fighter technology, but found that an even more difficult battle was trying to get his tongue around the word "Parsippany."

Dixon argued that military suppliers like the BASF Corp. in Parsippany will lose business if Tokyo gets hold of U.S. technology. But the town name tripped him up.

First he tried "Parsippany." He tried it again. Still no luck. Finally, with a little help from New Jersey Sen. Frank Lautenberg, Dixon got the hang of it and decided to practice a bit.

"Don't be fooled into thinking (the Japanese) are going to give us any breaks," he warned.

"The Japanese will get the business and the Japanese will keep the business and the folks that were building this in Parsippany, New Jersey...I love the name Parsippany."

"How large is Parsippany, New Jersey, may I ask my friend from New Jersey?"

"I would guess somewhere about 30 or 40 thousand," Lautenberg answered from across the Senate chamber. "They're growing rapidly. They're not persnickety in Parsippany."

That information sent Dixon into another verse of his Ode to Parsippany.

"I love that," he reminded his colleagues. "Thank you...thank the distinguished senator from New Jersey, addressing the question of Parsippany."

Long pause. "Parsippany," Lautenberg finished.

Streets

cord/Journal article on the need for a street plan. But Daves took exception to a statement attributed to Warfield that the Granite City truck route had been established without proper coordination.

Daves said that, as chairman of the Traffic Committee, he had held three meetings and that he and the engineering staff had driven the route. The route was established in the knowledge that some "bugs" would have to be worked out, Daves said.

Seventh Ward Alderman Jeff Worthen said he took offense at the article because it held aldermen responsible for the bad condition of streets, calling it "a slap in the face of each and every one of us."

He quoted the job description of the superintendent of streets from the municipal code, said a street plan was the responsibility of the superintendent of streets, and said if the street superintendent wasn't able to come up with a street plan it was time for him to step down.

Worthen called for the City Council to include a public works director in the next budget. In the wide-open discussion that followed, the past practice of allocating $50,000 in motor fuel tax money to each ward for repairs received by the aldermen came under attack from 3rd Ward Alderman Paul Fisk. 2nd Ward Alderman Jim Miller and Worthen. They said the money would be better spent for major projects for the good of the city as a whole.

Fifth Ward Alderman Lloyd Bailey said he disagreed. He said that a major project takes money away from the little ones. "The people put us in for what we can do for the ward," he said. "... If for six years you've done nothing for that ward, you're not going to get re-elected."

Second Ward Alderman Virgil Kambarian said he thought an alderman has got to do what's best for the city.

"If a project comes up that is good for the city as a whole and it is needed more than the projects in my ward, I am going to vote for it," Kambarian said. "If the people of my ward don't like it, they can vote against me in four years."

Fourth Ward Alderman Dan Partney said the blame for the city's lack of a street plan should be given to the motor fuel tax engineer, not the street superintendent.

The discussion ended when an alderman called for the question and, discovering there was none, the aldermen agreed that the discussion had gone beyond the time limit set in the rules of decorum.

During the council's review of old business, Worthen made the motion to require a street department report. The same resolution was passed more than a year ago and again a few months ago. Warfield has never submitted a report and Worthen, the last time it passed, asked the city attorney to look into the possibility of enforcement.

Miller seconded Worthen's latest motion, and it passed by a voice vote.

Bailey, very loudly, voted no.

Politics

"I hope he gets a Wal-Mart downtown. I hope he gets all the streets repaired and all the sewers fixed. I hope he gets the sanitation problems solved. I really hope he can bring in new industry and get the city back on its feet."

"But I don't think he can. I know he can't if he's going to do things the way he did tonight."

Warfield said the mayor and aldermen had gotten involved in a shouting match when they should have been conducting business and that he resigned not because of the attacks on him, but because it wasted the city's time.

"You tell me, how can anything get done in a meeting like that?" Warfield asked.

After the meeting, Cruse said he had lost his temper.

"When you're angry you say things. The way you say things when you're mad is not the way you would like to have said them," Cruse said. "But the biggest problem in the city is the elected superintendent of streets, who said that four years ago and I'll say it again now." Cruse was elected to a second four-year term as mayor this spring, defeating Warfield.

Any elected superintendent of streets, Cruse said, will eventually place politics before public service, in self-defense.

"He's got to get re-elected," Cruse said. "If he wants to get re-elected, he has to include politics in every move he makes. Not just Warfield, but anybody who, would get elected to the job."

Cruse said the street position became an elected position in 1983 because of a 1989 or 1990 deal between Mayor Leonard R. Davis and Street Superintendent Bill Warfield (Mac Warfield's father).

Cruse said Davis had said he wanted to serve just one more term as mayor (1981-85) and Bill Warfield, who had been appointed by Davis, was worried about holding onto his job when Davis no longer was mayor. In return for Bill Warfield's support, Cruse said, Davis pushed for the position to be elective.

"I think it's important for the people to know this history," Cruse said. "Once before, when I suggested the street superintendent shouldn't be an elected position, the Press-Record said in an editorial that this would be taking away the people's rights."

"The good of the people had nothing to do with this position being formed. The good of Bill Warfield was the only reason."

young people in East St. Louis.

Mrs. Bergfield, who will be 80 on her next birthday, told the crowd of 850 that announcement of the award in April had generated an outpouring of testimonials in her honor.

"I've lived more corsages in the last month than I have in my entire life," she said.

Ida Stewart said the 10 award winners had achieved goals in 10 different ways, filling needs in fields ranging from the arts to community health to metropolitan planning.

Sponsored by the Suburban Journals and KMOX Radio, the event was held in the Hyatt Regency St. Louis, formerly the Omni International Hotel.

The luncheon began with welcoming remarks by Robert F. Hyland, senior vice president of CBS Radio, who thanked all the women "who had made a difference in our community."

Tricia

Torchy was the nickname of Orville Dickey of Mitchell who, during the 1957 United Fund campaign, spent thirty days living in an aluminum hut on top of a 25-foot pole.

"Because that is the attitude and spirit that prevailed, the King Bridge can now operate as a connector between Interstate 55/70 in Illinois and Interstate 70 and downtown St. Louis in Missouri, relieving rush-hour traffic on the crowded Poplar Street Bridge."

"It will do so ahead of schedule. It will do so without tolls. And it will save lives."

Thompson and Ashcroft were joined by other public officials from both sides of the river at the ceremony. The ceremony was held at the state line, which is in the middle of the bridge.

"This day would not have been possible had it not been for the cooperative, regional approach to problem-solving taken by citizens of both Missouri and Illinois," Thompson said.

King Bridge

open again

EAST ST. LOUIS — It was "hands across the Mississippi River" on Wednesday afternoon.

Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson and Missouri Gov. John Ashcroft marked the completion of nearly $27 million in rehabilitation to the Martin Luther King Jr. Bridge by lighting the final bolts on the structure.

The bridge, which crosses the Mississippi from East St. Louis to St. Louis, had been closed nearly April 15, 1988. It was opened again yesterday, nearly a month ahead of schedule.

Not afraid of a fight

Partney brothers on childhood values, adult difficulties

By Andy Siering
Staff writer

The Partney brothers — Don Jr., Dave and Dan — are nothing if not combative. Even quiet and reserved Don knew his share of physical confrontations as a youngster. Dave's reputation as a barroom brawler is well established. Dan was frequently decorated while serving in Vietnam in 1968-69. Their political and personal lives have been marked by legal entanglements as well. Attorney Leon Scroggins derives substantial income from representing them.

Say what you will about the Partneys, they don't back down. Currently, the three are facing trial on perjury charges connected to the April 1989 city-township election.

"This is the first time they've ever tried to get all three of us," said Dave, 45, the middle brother in age. Don Jr. is 51 and Dan is 39.

The trial will draw considerable attention to the brothers, so perhaps some background on them is in order. Their father, Don Partney Sr., served two terms as mayor of Granite City from 1965 to 1972 before his death in January 1974. It was he who molded them into battlers, they say.

Dave tells the story of how some schoolmates of Don's tried to stick his head in a toilet. "He whipped-all three," Dave said in his distinctive, gravelly voice. Sitting in a meeting room of the family business, Granite Sheet Metal Works Inc., at 2500 Missouri Ave., the brothers remembered how they were taught to stand up for themselves and for each other.

"Dad always taught us, better not start a fight, but don't start from one," Dave Partney said. "I'll still fight if somebody gets me in a corner."

The brothers were taught to fight with boxing gloves in the back yard of the Partney home in West Granite. Dave was born five years, eight months after Don, and Dan was born five years, eight months after Dave.

Don laughed as he remembered how he would hold the younger Dave away by putting his hand to his forehead. "David would get mad and swing till his arms got tired," he said.

"We're not afraid of nobody," Dan volunteered.

Then Dave remembered how he and Don would hold Dan down and drop water in his eyes with an eyedropper.

"He'd misbehave and we'd torture him," he said with a gleam. Scuffles erupted frequently when their parents were not home.

"We got to be experts at guaging things back together," Dan said. "We'll fight each other, but nobody else better fight with us."

"If you're going to get one of us, you're going to have to get all three of us," he continued.

"We were raised to stick together."

Dave said the combativeness was strictly from their father. "Mom (Dorothy Partney) always said if you couldn't say anything good about somebody, don't say anything. She'd always turn her cheek. We're not that way."

Dan also offered that their father instilled in them the importance of keeping one's word. "He taught us our word was our bond."

He also said their mother, who he described as "the driving force" in their father's life — was "the only person who could say no to him. But she seldom said it."

Dave said their mother, who was a Sunday School teacher at Second Baptist Church on Illinois Avenue, was strict about their attendance.

"You went to Sunday School or you didn't do anything else that day," he said.

The Partneys are currently building a subdivision at Pontoon Road and Village Lane in Granite City. Ground should be broken by the end of May.

The 13-acre development will have streets named after their parents: Donald Court and Dorothy Court.

Of the three, Don is the only one who has never held elective office, although he ran for alderman once, losing by 30 votes.

All three have been active in civic and charitable endeavors. Dan is a 4th ward alderman, a Democratic precinct committeeman and a former member of the Madison County Board. He is also past president of the Board of Police Commissioners.

Dave is a past president of the Granite City Board of Education and the local chapters of the Jaycees and the Red Cross. He has also served on the boards of the Chamber of Commerce and Coordinated Youth Services.

Don is the president of the local YMCA and is a past president of the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotarians.

R C Bush, executive vice president of the Chamber, speaks glowingly of Don, who he says is the only one of the three he knows well.

"He's a leader in the chamber, an excellent engineer and highly respected in the industrial community," Bush said. "He's been a real mover in economic development efforts in the Tri-Cities."

When you ask the Partneys about their political and civic endeavors, the conversation comes back again to their parents. In addition to serving two terms as mayor, Don Sr. was an alderman for 18 years. He also served on a national committee to elect Hubert Humphrey president in 1968.

former mayor Don Partney Sr. They credit him with teaching them to be battlers.

(In 1964 when Lyndon Baines Johnson was running against Barry Goldwater, somebody came out with a beverage called "Gold Water." A light went on in the senior Partney's head and he quickly came out with "Johnson Juice," which he marketed through Lady Bird Distributing Co., located at the present site of the sheet metal works.)

Says Dave: "We were always taught to put back what we took out (of the community)." He says the company spends about $10,000 a year to support local youth sports teams.

Says Dan: "We feel politics is a tool to use to make Granite City a better place," adding, "Some political notables just take it makes you wonder sometimes."

Dan said, "When you look at our side of the river compared to St. Louis, a lot of the difference has to do with the quality of the politicians here."

He resigned from the 21st District seat on the county board, following his divorce from his first wife, Beverly.

At the time, he cited adverse publicity surrounding the divorce and custody fight, as well as publicity over allegations Bev Partney made about his having accepted campaign contributions from Thomas Brimberry, later convicted in the looting of the Stix & Co. brokerage house in St. Louis.

No charges were filed in the campaign matter.

At the time, Dan told the Press-Record, "I never, ever will be a candidate again. Politics is far out of my life."

Of his change of heart, he says today, "They had me beat down in the dumps." On his future political plans, he is non-committal. "I'll take it a day at a time."

Dave said it will be "some time before I get involved again."

Don — perhaps looking at how the family name has been battered from his brothers' political involvement — gave a definite "no" when asked if he intended to get into politics again.

"The way I look at it, I won by 30 votes," Don said.

Granite Sheet Metal Works Inc. is the backbone of the brothers' fortunes. They also own Partney Construction Co. Inc. and Three "D" Inc.

The sheet metal company is the largest such company in southern Illinois, employing an average of 50 workers year-round and up to 125 in the peak summer period. It had a payroll of $1.8 million in 1988 and does between $5 million and $7 million worth of business a year.

Their parents formed the company in 1951, selling the family car and buying a pickup truck. The company got by the first few years largely on air conditioning and furnace installation. Its first big contract was a siding job for Granite City Steel.

Don is the president of the company, and Dave and Dan are vice presidents. The brothers each own a third but run it like three separate companies with each responsible for servicing his own accounts, estimating and selling.

Clients include Anheuser-Busch, Granite City Steel and Monsanto, among dozens of others.

For about 10 years, ending in 1988, they jointly owned a 50-percent interest in Thomas Memorial Mortuary, which also owned Mercer Mortuary and Lahey-Sedack Funeral Home. They operated an ambulance service there, in addition to running the sheet metal company.

The two jobs made for some long hours. "Sometimes it would be days before we got to bed," Dan said.

They still put in long hours, although Don says not as long hours as Dan would have you believe.

So how do three equal partners manage to do business? "They don't tell me what to do and I don't tell them what to do," Dan said of his brothers. "That's how we get along."

Dave added, "We talk as a group about things that might take us away from the company," Dan said. "We'll cuss each other out, but when we leave the room it's over."

"Plus, there's always a stand-breaker with three of us," Dave said.

Dan summed up their differences: "Everybody tells us Don's the conservative one, Dave's ultra-liberal, and I'm kind of in the middle."

Journals premier suburban newspaper group in nation

Press-Record history is well known here, including the newspaper's origin shortly after the turn of the century and the 43 years (1927-70) in which C.E. "Corky" Townsend was actively involved in its operation and management.

Today, let's consider some of the history of the Journal newspapers. The Granite City Journal was established in the mid-1970s and the combined Press-Record/Journal, whose parent company is East Side Publications, dates back to 1984.

WE ARE PROUD to be a part of what is recognized as the premier suburban newspaper group in the United States — the Suburban Newspapers of Greater St. Louis (SNGSL). Among those most familiar with the St. Louis area newspaper group is Howard F. Etling. He is the topic of an article prepared this week by the Suburban News Service and quoted here.

We'll pass along that report because it gives considerable insight into how SNGSL came into being:

ETLING, 74, will relinquish his role as publisher of South County Publications Inc. on May 31 and become publisher emeritus for the Suburban Newspapers of Greater St. Louis.

Bob MacDonald, 34, advertising director, will become general manager of South County Publications.

on June 1.

In his new role, Etling will represent the Suburban Journals with a variety of civic organizations such as the Variety Club, the St. Louis Ambassadors and the Advertising Club of Greater St. Louis.

South County Publications publishes the Neighborhood Journal, South Side Journal, South County Journal and Fenton Journal.

"I'M MISS the people the most," Etling said. "I probably would have retired sooner if it wasn't for the people here. After all, people make businesses; businesses make people."

"But it's time. I want to have more time for my family and friends, more time to visit with them," he said. "I can play more tennis, too. My time will be more my own."

"What Howard brought to this job is a certain level of responsibility and stature that will be hard to match," MacDonald said.

"He has an excellent understanding of community news and its role in the lives of the community. He also has a great concern for the readers, employees and businesses that make up what the Journals are today."

THE 54-YEAR newspaper career of Etling, lifelong south St. Louisan, began in 1935 as a writer and advertising salesman for the Neighborhood News (now Neighborhood Journal).

Winter wonderland

By Bill Winter

The newspaper served south St. Louis and was focused around the many merchant associations that grew from South Side business districts.

In 1936, the South Side Journal began publishing in south St. Louis. It was managed by Frank Z. Bick and quickly became a direct challenger to the News for readers and advertisers.

"We really ran nip and tuck back then," Etling said. "Whenever somebody opened a store, we wanted to be there first."

IT WAS DURING the 1930s and '40s that Etling's diligence in providing local news set the stage for the Suburban Journals of today, this week's article related.

"Neighborhood news was, and is, the backbone of our newspaper. We had all the church events, the school plays, the neighborhood meetings and the business association news," Etling said. "All of it was mailed in (at that time). We didn't have any reporters as such."

Etling, Bernard H. Nordmann, Bernard W. Nordmann and William F. Nordmann purchased the old Siegrist Printing Co. in 1937 and formed Nordmann Printing. (The Nordmann building was bought this year for production of the St. Louis Sun daily beginning in September 1989.)

The Nordmann company printed the Neighborhood News and, through an agreement with Bick's son, Frank C. Bick, also began printing its chief rival, the South Side Journal.

IN THE LATE 1940s, Etling, Bick and a handful of other suburban newspaper publishers formed the Accredited Home Newspapers of America (AHNA) as a means of bringing better organization to the burgeoning industry.

The organization later became Suburban Newspapers of America, consisting of 180 publishing companies with more than 1,200 newspapers in the United States and Canada. The combined circulation of SNA newspapers is 18 million.

In the late 1950s, Etling received an outstanding-journalism award from AHNA for coverage in Neighborhood News of the plight of the elderly at the old Chronic Hospital in St. Louis. After weeks of pressure from the newspaper, then-Mayor Raymond Tucker of St. Louis reversed his position and agreed to build a new hospital for the elderly.

AFTER DECADES of battling it out in south St. Louis, Etling and Bick joined forces in 1970. Bick bought the Neighborhood News and Etling became general manager of the newly formed St. Louis Suburban Newspapers.

The South Side Journal and Neighborhood News became mainstays in an organization that soon expanded into a 10-newspaper chain.

Ralph Ingersoll's Ingersoll Publications Inc. purchased the St. Louis Suburban Newspapers chain, as well as groups of newspapers in north St. Louis County and Illinois, in 1984, forming Suburban Newspapers of Greater St. Louis.

It was then that Etling became publisher at the newly reorganized South County Publications.

"AT THE BEGINNING, we weren't really recognized as being a 'real newspaper,'" Etling said. "Now, SNGSL is recognized as the premier suburban newspaper group in the country."

"I'm happy to have been a part of it. Suburban news is one of the fastest growing industries in the United States."

Well-known throughout St. Louis, Etling has served on the boards of a variety of businesses and non-profit agencies.

FORMER GOVERNOR Warren Hearnes appointed him in the 1960s to a two-year term on the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners. Many people still refer to Etling as "Colonel" from his police board days.

Etling and his wife, Mary, have eight children. Tom, Jim, Mary, Don, Mark, Susie, Jane and Bill. Don Etling is publisher of the Collinsville Herald-Journal.

An avid athlete, Howard Etling was a city tennis champ in the 1930s and still pursues the sport, playing two sets of tennis each Sunday morning. Despite his departure from South County Publications, Etling will remain as the starting pitcher on the company softball team.

Etling said he is glad he had the wisdom to hire Thomas Marchel 17 years ago as an advertising salesman for the South Side Journal. Marchel now is president and chief executive officer of the Suburban Newspapers of Greater St. Louis.

City zoning affects us all

Our article May 17 on Granite City was entitled "Zoning: Room for everyone?" Part of a weekly series on urgent needs, the zoning topic deserves attention because it affects all residents, businesses and visitors.

Zoning decisions seldom please everyone. When a proposed use of property is blocked, the owner can be put in a difficult position. When a proposal is approved, nearby residents can suffer.

The whole process is intended to improve living conditions and resolve differences, if possible. The ultimate goals are fairness to all while creating logical patterns of development.

But fairness has not been achieved in a number of instances and conflicting development has occurred.

1. An example of a past problem is the time when city fathers "protected" Granite Citizens from the establishment of a Denny's Restaurant. There may have been thoughts of protectionism for existing businesses, but if that was the case it was ill-advised and ineffective; we are "safe" from a Denny's invasion but it didn't keep our busiest and biggest restaurant, Charlie's, alive.

2. Unfairness occurred when minimum-property-size regulations were used to make almost any new business impossible to create; there simply weren't many multi-acre locations in existence. This served to ban not only brand new firms but also those trying to utilize sites that had been in commercial use for decades.

3. It is unfair when a neighborhood is so tightly controlled that individuals and families can no longer walk to a site providing essential goods. Not all Granite Citizens are young enough, healthy enough or wealthy enough to drive to a distant store or office. Bus service is much scarcer than in past years. What are such consumers to do to meet their basic needs?

Our interview yesterday with an experienced zoning commissioner spotlighted five points:

•Home businesses should be allowed, but regulated in the interest of safety, noise, parking, lighting, hours, signs and street and alley traffic volume.

•The city's improved zoning ordinance should be further finetuned, including the addition of fence guidelines.

•A comprehensive city plan should be completed, adopted and followed.

•Special-use permits should be used to assure orderly transitions in changing neighborhoods.

•A public works department should be created to expedite, coordinate and encourage progressive development programs.

Still other approaches may be needed. The "bottom line" is that rules need to be adhered to by and in our city, but not for the sake of arbitrariness. They need to be written and enforced for the overall good.

A city ideally is a pleasant, pretty, convenient, desirable place, a fine community in which to live and one that can compete and prosper.

Such a city is achievable, but has not yet been fully achieved. Determined, cooperative effort can make it happen.

Joint-use base nearer reality

As Gov. James R. Thompson announced yesterday during a visit to Madison and St. Clair counties, the Air Force has found that joint civilian-military use of Scott Air Force Base would be potentially beneficial to both Scott and the region that surrounds it.

This conclusion may be rather obvious, but the finding is significant because it has been one of the key hurdles still to be overcome. The governor pledged his best efforts to expedite the joint-use plan, which can profoundly aid both Missouri and Illinois by keeping the bi-state area viable in handling the fast-growing air traffic volume.

In a letter to Thompson, Acting Air Force Assistant Secretary Eric M. Thorsen said the Air Force has evaluated the Illinois state government's proposal and is prepared to proceed with the Air Force environmental impact statement, the next major step in developing the Scott base.

The governor said at a luncheon in Collinsville, "We're very pleased with the Air Force's finding. The state and St. Clair County (local sponsor of the project) will continue to work with the Air Force to resolve the remaining issues."

"The careful development of Scott will result in a tremendous economic benefit to southwestern Illinois. By the year 2005, we expect that 4,000 jobs will be created and the overall economic benefit to the region will exceed $100 million annually."

"If the Midwest is to continue as a major hub in the nation's air transportation system, we must look to future development of new airports as well as upgrading our existing facilities. The development of Scott as a joint-use facility is a bargain when compared to building an entire, new, major airport."

The current cost estimate to develop facilities for initial civilian use of Scott is $150 million with the full cost expected to total $180 million or $185 million. Construction of a new airport of comparable size would cost more than $1 billion.

The state in March 1989 completed the master plan and its environmental assessment. Based on the Air Force's review of the Action and Alternatives and the environmental assessment, Thorsen said, "We have determined that the proposed airport layout has potential benefits."

Before the Air Force gives final approval for joint use, St. Clair and the state will need to concur with each other on a list of issues. But most of these issues already are being addressed by Illinois, including runway layout, timing of facility opening, and responsibility for maintaining runway and civilian facilities.

Illinois and St. Clair, meanwhile, will continue to negotiate with the Air Force on three points—replacement of housing lost due to airport expansion, mitigation of environmental changes, and funding issues.

Library system praises expansion

To the editor:

The front page article May 11 caught my attention. Bold letters announced, "Pontoon Wants Granite Kept Out." Because I am involved with the Granite City Public Library on this particular project, the article was interesting.

Perhaps it might have been titled, "Library Services Soon to be Expanded." Let me recount the activities of the past several months.

The Granite City Public Library is a member of the Lewis & Clark Library System. We are a multi-type consortium that serves libraries within the seven counties in southwestern Illinois.

The System headquarters facilitates cooperation between our members and provides services that cannot be supplied through maximum local effort. We actively promote the extension of library service within areas that do not have such tax-supported service.

For the past several years, the Granite City Public Library Board of Trustees has examined the issues surrounding a municipal library within a larger school district. "How do you provide needed services to individuals outside your taxing area?"

The Board came to its decision in late December 1988. They would apply for a Project PLUS Title I LSCA (Library Services and Construction Act) from federal funds distributed to the Illinois State Library.

The Letter of Intent, the formal notification to the Illinois State Library, was sent in January 1989. The proposal to the state was due in April. The Granite City Public Library notified, by certified mail, the other public libraries near to or adjacent to the unserved area that a Project PLUS proposal would be submitted in April.

In early February, the director of the Granite City Public Library spoke to groups of interested citizens from Pontoon Beach. On March 21, the Board of Trustees of the Village of Pontoon Beach established, by ordinance, a free public library within the boundaries of the village. Part of Pontoon Beach was in the Project PLUS area and, therefore, this created a problem.

A meeting was called for April 27 at Lewis & Clark Library System headquarters in Edwardsville for a thorough discussion of the issues. Present at the meeting were representatives of Pontoon Beach, Granite City, and the Lewis & Clark Library System.

Thanks to prom planners, not others

To the editor:

A big thank you to Mrs. Rosemarie Brown and all the bands, DJ's, restaurants and helpers who did so much to make the "After the Prom Party" possible.

It shows some people care about our kids. We all want the kids to have fun, but can't help worrying about them when they are out. This party at the YMCA made a lot of parents feel more at ease.

What do we do to parents that provide alcohol to kids at big parties at their homes? If I had a son suspended from the Warrior baseball team due to alcohol, I would be out for blood. I hope there will be criminal charges against such parents.

I was surprised but glad the school held by its rules on no drinking for team members.

If half of our high school students are using drugs or alcohol, that's 1,500. We sure don't need parents adding gas to a fire already out of control.

K.D. MITCHELL, Granite City

ton Beach, Granite City, the neighboring libraries and two System staff. The discussion centered on:

•A new governance structure for the Granite City Public Library, that of a district library.

•The election of trustees who would represent the district.

•A name change for the "new" library.

•The creation of a small branch with hours of operation and library materials at Pontoon Beach.

•And the inclusion of all Pontoon Beach within the project.

We asked the representatives of Pontoon Beach at the meeting to explain the project to the village trustees, to work with Granite City for a successful election and to secure the building space that they had been promised from a community member.

The Pontoon Beach Village Board met on April 29 and chose not to include a section Pontoon Beach in the demonstration project. The community of Pontoon Beach has missed an opportunity to see, to use, and then to choose if they wanted to become a member of a much larger service area.

Libraries, effective information centers, are not created overnight. Books, magazines, computers, records, programming, utilities and staff are not free for any library. By the creation of a larger unit of service, the tax money collected for the library can purchase more goods and services, since you are part of a strong base.

When Granite City Public Library signs its one-year contract with the Illinois State Library and announces its programs for the Project PLUS area, I encourage the citizens of Community School District 9, except for Pontoon Beach, to utilize the many services available at the library.

Libraries are not free, but they are information bargains for the citizens of Illinois. You may be surprised what they offer.

More room for lake cruising and docking

By Bill Winter

It has been many years since I owned a small cabin cruiser, but I've spent enough time in the Alton Lake area to know that boating there appeals to many residents of the Granite City area and Metro East region.

With this in mind, it makes sense to maximize the benefits of the extra lake space that is being created. It is being created by the construction of the Melvin Price Locks and Dam. These locks and dam will replace the existing Alton Locks and Dam that are two miles upstream.

Installation of the new Mississippi River facility is far enough along that the Corps of Engineers already is making plans for the day when the portion of the river between the old and new dams will be allowed increased water depth.

From the start there was talk of creating a recreational marina in the vicinity of the aging dam on the Alton riverfront. Now, the details of how to make it a reality are being dealt with.

Legislation to pave the way for the marina project passed the U.S. House by unanimous consent May 11. It calls for land to be swapped by the Corps and Azcon Scrap Corp.

Introduced in Washington by Rep. Jerry Costello, the plan next was sent to the Senate for approval. Such shortcuts could be followed by presidential approval within a few days.

Cooperating in the speedup are the House Public Works and Transportation Committee and the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

Azcon will move its scrap-loading operations to condemned city commons and downstream from the present dock. The Engineer Corps condemned a section of the Russell Commons because of flooding that will occur there due to the dam replacement.

Azcon hopes to take title to the new site by July 1. It will build a levee, and the city will assist with a road and water lines.

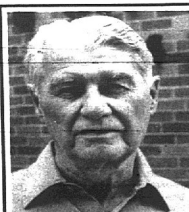

As Costello said on the House floor, the property switch "provides an opportunity for the federal government to assist a local government (the city of Alton), with no cost to taxpayers."

The project will not only boost the economy of the lake area but also provide a needed expansion of boat mooring space. Many Illinoisans now utilize harbors on the Missouri side of the lake.

Do you agree with ban on importing assault weapons?

President George Bush has proposed a permanent ban on import of military assault weapons. He is also proposing stiffer sentences for criminals convicted of crimes involving use of this type of weapon and appropriating $1 billion for the construction of additional prisons. Do you agree with the import ban?

Bill Evans, 73, Granite City
"I think it's a good idea. There are too many guns around. There's kids carrying guns to school. It's a shame."

Jim Wallis, 37, Granite City
"I would be in favor of the ban. I question anyone having a legitimate interest in these weapons, not even sportsmen. I'm sorry there isn't more money for (prisoner) rehabilitation programs in addition to building more jails."

Les Caton, 53, Pontoon Beach
"There's no doubt there are a lot of them around. They should be banned. I don't know anybody who needs them. You can't hunt with them. I'd like to see someone shoot a rabbit with one of them."

Bill H. Terrell, area manager in Granite City for the Franklin Life Insurance Co., Springfield, Ill., has earned one of the company's top sales honors, according to Franklin President Howard C. Humphrey, CLU.

Humphrey said Terrell has qualified for Franklin's Centurion Club, a national honor organization of the company's most successful sales associates. Terrell's qualification was based on outstanding personal sales totals for March.

Olin Increases dividend

Olin Corporation's board of directors has announced an increase in the quarterly dividend to 50 cents per share, payable June 9 to shareholders of record May 10. This is an increase of five cents a share from the previous rate, which was last increased by five cents in July 1988.

It is the 250th consecutive quarterly dividend. "This dividend increase reflects the company's very good performance trends and significant improvements in the quality and consistency of earnings," said John W. Johnstone Jr., Olin chairman and chief executive officer. "It is consistent with the target set by Olin's board to increase dividends more frequently than in the past, based on the continued improvements in financial performance."

Fabick names Ag salesman

Fabick, the Caterpillar dealer, has announced the appointment of John Kern to the position of agricultural salesman. Kern is representing Fabick in all of Fabick's 36-county southern Illinois territory.

Fabick's agricultural line of equipment includes the Challenger 65 farm tractor, the Claas line of harvesting equipment, and other tools and machinery.

Kern is a native of the Vandalia area. He has extensive agricultural experience, farming since his teen-age years. After graduation from Texas Bible College he worked as a salesman for an agricultural equipment dealer in Vandalia for 10 years while also farming.

Kern is based at the Fabick branches in Marion and Salem. Fabick Companies, headquartered in Fenton, St. Louis County, is the authorized dealer for Caterpillar agricultural, engine and construction equipment, as well as the Claas line of harvesting equipment in 73 counties of southeast Missouri and southern Illinois.

S.M. Wilson finishes Hampton

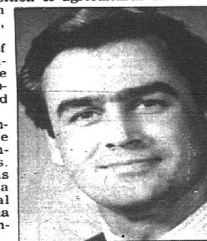

S.M. Wilson & Co., general contractors and construction managers with offices in Granite City and St. Louis, recently completed construction of the new $3 million Hampton Inn-Airport three weeks ahead of schedule. The hotel is located on Dunn Road fronting Interstate 270 west of Graham Road in north St. Louis County.

Hampton Inn-Airport, 10 minutes from Lambert-St. Louis International Airport, is St. Louis' third Hampton Inn. The four-story, road-bearing masonry structure features a buff-colored, synthetic plaster exterior and precast concrete floors with full-height windows.

The 56,800-square-foot facility adds 132 hotel rooms to the Lambert hotel market. Developer of the hotel is Missouri Motor Inn Development Corp. of Memphis, Tenn.

"We got a strong jump on construction during the earthwork and foundation stage with the dry spring and summer last year," notes Dale W. Miller, S.M. Wilson project manager. "We maintained our lead with the excellent cooperation from our subcontractors, fueled by the owner's desire to begin hotel operations at the earliest possible date."

George A. Thomason Associates, Memphis, was architect for Hampton Inn-Airport. Major subcontractors included K&L Heating-Cooling & Sheet Metal Inc., HVAC; Condaire Inc., plumbing; Big John's Electric Co. Inc., electrical; Ste. Genevieve Building Stone, St. Genevieve, Mo., masonry; Majestic Iron Works Inc., steel fabrication; and E-M-E Inc., precast concrete and steel erection.

Fabick: 'Service goal here'

The John Fabick Tractor Co., this area's major Caterpillar dealer headquartered in Fenton, Mo., operates by a philosophy emblazoned on each of its buildings: "To ever serve our customers better."

The company recently made a move for its Illinois customers, with the opening of a new facility in Pontoon Beach. The store officially opened for business on April 3. The 7,000 square-foot building at 3944 Illinois 111 was previously owned and operated by Comfort Heating & Cooling. Only minor interior remodeling was required to convert the facility into a full-service operation providing over-the-counter sales, parts, service and equipment rental.

Fabick also added a seven-foot chain-link fence around the two-acre lot. Store manager Dan Landgraf describes the Pontoon Beach location as a mini-branch of Fenton. "We offer all of the same parts, equipment and service, on a somewhat smaller scale. Anything we don't have we can get within 24 hours, saving our Illinois customers a trip across the river," he said.

Saving their customers' time and money by providing a local depot for parts and service is the main reason Fabick made the move to Pontoon Beach. This facility was established primarily to serve St. Clair, Madison, Jersey and Calhoun counties, a spokesman said.

This store is also a shorter drive for Caterpillar owners in north St. Louis County, it was said, and Illinois customers can save money by not having to purchase special permits required to haul heavy equipment from one state to another.

Except for truck engines, which are repaired at Fabick's new Fabick Power Systems in Fenton, most heavy equipment can be serviced at the Pontoon Beach shop.

Fabick also hopes to attract new customers as well as providing better service for its current clientele. "We anticipate the Interstate 255/270 corridor to be a significant area for industrial as well as new construction growth," said William Beabout, Fenton branch manager.

"This new branch gives us the presence we need with our present Illinois customers, as well as giving us a leg up on new business as the area begins to boom."

Fabick selected the Pontoon Beach location based on machine population and customer location studies done by Caterpillar. Unlike the Fenton store, Pontoon Beach will operate a parts display area in the front of the building to handle items such as batteries, chemicals, tools, filters, oil and shop supplies.

"This is Fabick's most retail-oriented effort and we anticipate a good amount of walk-in traffic," it was asserted.

The Illinois store will stock a parts inventory of approximately 2,000 items based on the parts history of buyers in surrounding counties. They will be linked by computer to Fenton, which carries a 35,000 line item inventory.

Parts availability information is immediately available from the computer. One-day service via a parts shuttle from Fenton will take care of parts not on hand here. The Fenton facility has overnight service from four CAT depots.

Fabick will also utilize its new Illinois facility to display a recently expanded product line, Caterpillar's Century Line machines. The Century Line is a group of tractors, excavators, backhoes, skidders, wheel loaders, track-type loaders and integrated tool carriers specially designed for rebuilding, renovation and utility jobs.

Fabick also plans to introduce Caterpillar's new rubber-track farm tractor, the Challenger 65, out of the Illinois branch.

The Pontoon Beach store will sell and service the Century Line machines as well as all other Caterpillar equipment, except for some limitations on service of the larger machines.

All past service records can be checked for customers through the computer. There will also be on-site hose service for C&O machines as well as all other brands of construction and farm equipment. This service will cover medium and low pressure hoses with permanent crimped ends in addition to re-usable fittings.

The facility also houses an office and meeting room for the two parts, sales and service representatives who cover southwestern Illinois. They can meet customers here or use the office for general sales activities.

The store is staffed by Landgraf, Tony Mullane, parts and counter sales; Jim Lepperman, mechanic; and Joe Roth, who will service equipment in the field. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

If you win lottery experts advise plan

By Roger McGrath
Staff affiliate

Almost everyone secretly dreams of winning millions from the state lottery, or hitting the jackpot in Las Vegas.

Some dream of learning that a long-lost aunt left a sizable inheritance that can, like lottery or Vegas winnings, set you for life.

But such a rosy scenario is only likely if the beneficiary of this unexpected windfall acts prudently, financial planners and money managers say.

Namely, recipients of windfall gains—this can include a hefty bonus or options to buy a company's stock at less-than-market price—should take time to plan their fiscal future and take stock of where they are now and where they want to be financially, planners advise.

Brian Randall, vice president in the Belleville office of A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc., the brokerage house, says he is seeing more windfall winners than ever.

Among those seeking his counsel are retirees or those approaching retirement who can have up to $500,000 in Individual Retirement Accounts and other savings that they need to "roll over," put into safe investments until they need the funds.

"If I won the lottery tomorrow, I'd go out of town for awhile, change my phone number and plot out a course of action," says Art Weiss, manager of Arthur Andersen & Co.'s personal financial planning group. The first question Weiss says he would ask himself: "Art, what do you want to do with your life?"

But while the windfall winner is plotting his financial future, the telephone will be ringing with offers of sure-thing investments, requests from distant relatives and others who want a piece of the pie.

So Bobbie Muskopf, a personal financial planner with IDS Financial Services, tells clients to "put it somewhere where they can't touch it for three months." J. Patrick Kelley, of America Group Financial Services, suggests at least a six- to 12-month certificate of deposit.

"It gives you time to think," Muskopf says of temporarily stashing the cash.

And it also gives you time to find a financial planner you are comfortable with, Kelley adds.

"Having a solid financial team in place makes sense," Weiss says. "I suggest an accountant and a lawyer. You get objective education. Also, you have a system of checks and balances. There's no one person out there who can handle every single aspect of financial planning."

"The first year you get a lot of money is the critical year," Kelley says. "Don't spend lavishly until you're accustomed to having a lot of income."

C. Philip Johnston, director of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service, which helps those overwhelmed by debts to get back on their fiscal feet, advises, "Get out of debt, invest wisely and safely, and continue to budget no matter how much money you have."

In fact, financial planners' first recommendation is to pay off outstanding credit card balances. Randall then makes sure the life and health insurance coverage is adequate.

Next, "do some dreaming" about your future, Muskopf says.

Maybe you want to retire to a cottage at the Lake of the Ozarks while you have an annual income of $30,000. Using a computer, the financial planner will determine whether that is a reasonable goal given your current financial situation and the type of investment vehicles you are comfortable with, Kelley says.

This is where planners earn their keep. For instance, $30,000 a year at retirement might sound great today, but even with 4 percent inflation it might take $120,000 in, say, the year 2019 to have the same purchasing power as $30,000 today, Weiss says.

Each windfall winner's plan would be different because of different goals. One winner might enjoy investing in risky ventures while another of the same age and similar goals might only be comfortable investing in CDs.

"A financial relationship is a long-term relationship," Muskopf says.

Weiss, Kelley and Muskopf annually meet with clients to assess their investments' progress toward reaching those long-term goals.

Changes in strategy sometimes are required. Perhaps the client has had another child or the tax code once again has been revised to the detriment of certain investments.

"The environment is always changing. That's why you have to always monitor" the financial plan, Weiss says. "It is not a one-shot deal."

Couple representing steel firm travels to China

Jack Cronn, National Steel Corp. Granite City Division manager-operations technology and staff-hot roll products, and his wife, Barbara, traveled to Beijing, China, to attend a five-day International Conference on Modernization of Steel Rolling held in April.

The Chinese Society of Metals, sponsor of the conference, called for papers last August on topics relating to the modernization of cold rolling or hot rolling of steel.

Of all the American steel firms that applied, National was the only domestic steel company accepted for presentation of papers. The total conference papers accepted totaled 104 from 28 countries.

National Steel's presentation included papers from both the Midwest and Granite City divisions. The Granite City presentation was a paper by Cronn entitled "Modernization of 80-inch Hot Mill Gauge Setup Model."

Cronn said the paper was co-authored by GCS employees Akio Kodori, coordinator of operations, tech-hot strip, and Mike Johnson, process control information systems.

"The conference paper referenced the Granite City Division's hot roll products computer program for gauge control of hot rolled steel through the finishing mill," said Cronn. "The hot roll gauge setup computerized set-up model, in full-time operation since December 1988, is state-of-the-art and adaptable to any change in chemistry and gauge for various customer requirements."

Cronn said the paper evolved from the Division's gauge control project that began two years ago as part of an NKK cooperative study. NKK and National Intergroup Inc. jointly own National Steel. The cooperative study utilized the expertise of NKK representatives.

In addition to presenting a paper at the conference, Cronn was also appointed as co-vice session chairman for the cold rolling session. National Steel's Midwest Division was represented at the conference by

Dwayne Hibbs, Midwest engineering operations technology, who presented his paper entitled "Modernizing a Cold Reducing Tandem Mill for Tin Mill Products."

Other National Steel representatives attending included Great Lakes Division cold mill director Jim Householder and National Steel's manager of product process technology, Masaru Okada.

Enroute to the Beijing conference, Mr. and Mrs. Cronn visited NKK's Fukuyama Works in Japan to "review hot roll operations at that facility."

During the conference week, Mrs. Cronn attended activities planned for spouses of conference participants, including sightseeing tours in Beijing and the surrounding area.

After the conference, Mr. and Mrs. Cronn spent a week of personal vacation on a sightseeing tour of mainland China that included a visit to a Chinese steel mill and other points of interest, and concluded in Hong Kong, "shopping center of the world."

Audiology has grown dramatically in decade

By Carol Winders
St. Elizabeth Medical Center

May is National Better Speech and Hearing Month, and St. Elizabeth Medical Center has something to celebrate — 1989 marks the 10th anniversary of its Audiology Department, 798-3166.

It all began July 9, 1979, Cheryl Siegel-Grievens, now director of the department, was the whole department.

"We started with patients from Dr. Jeffrey Fierstein I did everything. I did the hearing testing, the secretarial work, the billing, scheduling appointments, compiling case histories, reporting to the doctors, plus I was the receptionist," Siegel-Grievens said. "If you would have told me then that we would be doing all that we do now, I would have laughed."

"I am proud of the evolution of the department. It is a tribute to the staff that we have always moved forward. A lot of the additions and improvements were due to community need. People are becoming more aware of hearing loss and the alternatives they can pursue to improve their hearing. There are no longer satisfied with the status quo. They understand that a hearing aid doesn't carry any stigma with it."

"A hearing aid is no more of an inconvenience than a pair of glasses. As more and more people accept this, there is more need for the services we provide. A hearing aid can give a person a new lease on life. And many won't settle for less. This department will continue to grow as long as people realize the possibilities."

The department began as a diagnostic clinic, giving basic hearing information and testing for balance disorders. During the first year, Siegel-Grievens saw 250 patients. In 1988, the department saw almost 3,300 patients. Her first assistant was Sr. Stephanie Turk, now the speech pathologist in the Stroke Rehab unit at the medical center.

"I really enjoyed working in the department. My training is in speech therapy, so I had a little bit of audiology, but usually you don't get to actually do any testing. I got some experience that I wouldn't have gotten otherwise," Sr. Stephanie said. "The department has grown so much. When we started there was one filing cabinet. Now there is a room full."

In 1981, Jan Cavaness, the audiology assistant, began in Audiology. "The department has really changed for the better. At first, it was just Cheryl and me. Each year, the number of patients and the amount of work has increased. We were lucky to get more help as we needed it, and the department has moved forward," Cavaness said.

"I think it will continue to grow because we provide a community service. We take care of patients and provide them information through testing, but we also talk to them and help them understand hearing loss and hearing aids. I think this department is a real asset in the community."

Audiology grew by leaps and bounds in 1983. On April 18, it expanded, opening the Ginger Crèek Hearing Center in Edwardsville. In May, it began dispensing hearing aids.

"Also, our second audiologist, David Heffner, joined us in 1983," Siegel-Grievens said. "The dispensing program grew out of the need for quality care for patients. We began dispensing hearing aids, part-time at first, as a service to the community. A person who needs a hearing aid has a right to expect quality care and hearing aid expertise. We were able to provide that."

In 1986, Sheila Kutz joined the department. Recently, the department added the fourth audiologist, Natalie Farrel. Siegel-Grievens, Heffner, Kutz and Farrel all have master's degrees in audiology and are certified by the American Speech and Hearing Association as clinical audiologists. They are also licensed by the state of Illinois as hearing aid dispensers.

"When Cheryl mentioned that this would be our 10th anniversary, we sat back and shook our heads," Cavaness said. "The changes and growth that we have experienced are just tremendous. The dispensing area has probably grown the most."

"Hearing aid dispensing has become a full-time program. It not only provides members of the community with a reliable and trustworthy source for hearing testing and hearing aids, it also provides counseling on the realities of hearing loss and living with a hearing aid.

"People are smarter about hearing aids. They shop around and talk to friends. They are better informed about what to expect and what they want," Kutz said. "They need accurate information from people they can trust. We provide that."

In 1987, the department added to its diagnostic capabilities with brainstem evoked potential equipment. It allows the staff to evaluate the auditory pathway. The department also began providing an audiologist to perform testing at Wood River Township Hospital twice a month.

"I joke that I have become the 'Paperwork Queen,' but my job has increased in complexity," Cavaness said. "I have more responsibility now. I help with the dispensing, order the hearing aids and call patients when the aids are in. Luckily, we have volunteers to help with some of the other work."

"We will continue to improve patient care," Siegel-Grievens said. "We will be adding a real ear measurement system soon. This will allow us to assess the actual functioning ability of hearing aids for each patient."

"The real-ear measurement system is the latest in technology," Kutz said. "It will definitely change how we do hearing aid fittings and assessments by giving us better and more accurate information. That will help the patient benefit more from his or her hearing aid."

"This is a technical advancement for hearing aid users. And I look forward to instituting other new technology as it becomes available and practical. For example, researchers are beginning to design digital hearing aids. It is the next innovation for future hearing aid-wearers. I'm excited about the possibilities."

"The important thing is that we not only get bigger, but better," Siegel-Grievens said. "We may add staff or offices; it doesn't matter as much as keeping the quality of care the best available. I want people to feel certain that this is the best place to go for hearing information."

Stange to fight gas tax boost

SPRINGFIELD — A motor fuel tax proposed by the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) is unjustified, since state road fund revenues are at record-high levels, State Rep. James R. Stange, R-44, said last week.

Stange criticized IDOT Secretary Greg Baise for proposing a six-cent tax hike, which was announced at a press conference May 2 in the state Capitol. Baise suggested solving traffic congestion, aging transit equipment and rail systems, and deteriorating bridges and highways by imposing the tax increase.

"If ever a tax plan reeked of a need to rebudget," Stange said, "it's this one."

Stange said Illinois already pays heavy taxes in the following areas: 13 cents on gasoline statewide; 3 cents per gallon more in Chicago; 6 cents per gallon imposed by many counties; about 1 percent sales tax for the Chicago area; Regional Transportation Authority (RTA), 6 percent sales tax on gasoline and a 1 percent local sales tax on a dollar.

The lawmaker said that in the past few years Baise has proposed "revenue enhancement" proposals of 13½ cents, seven cents and five cents.

"It looks like he's finally settled at six cents this time around," Stange said, "and that, too, can't be justified. All the secretary's trial balloons have failed miserably because people are too smart."

The state contends that when timely maintenance of roads is neglected, ultimate repair costs multiply substantially.

Clergy aiding welfare group

To the editor:

Protestant Welfare Association Inc. has been helping the needy of the Quad Cities since 1953, by providing food, clothing, and medical equipment on a temporary and/or emergency basis.

Last year, Protestant Welfare served 5,210 individuals in our community.

It is funded in part by the United Way. However, over one-third of the agency's annual budget comes from donations by individuals and churches.

The Board of Directors wishes to acknowledge publicly a recent donation by the Quad-Cities Ministerial Alliance.

This generous gift represents the commitment and support felt by local clergy for the agency. We hope this support will serve as a catalyst for future gifts from citizens and churches in our community.

PROTESTANT WELFARE

Responds to NIMBY label

To the editor:

I would like to respond to the article on "BD Kids" on April 5. Mr. Balen, Madison County Region I special education director, calls Madison people NIMBYs (not in my back yard).

I suggest he needs to re-evaluate the NIMBYs. Madison people are parents of lawyers, dentists, civil and mechanical engineers, accountants, comptrollers, teachers and principals of Madison and Granite City schools. Parents of all the above signed the petitions (165 signatures) which aren't being considered and play no part in the people of Madison being heard.

A man, educated in Venice and Madison schools, now residing in Granite City, is a very fine person. He mentioned a knife pulled on him, and threatening phone calls, and yet they are not "bad kids."

One Madison grandparent said that, if they don't make it, send them to jail. I did not say this.

They are children, not adults. Some never grow up.

I really believe all these problems the children have could be handled in the school. Maybe not a regular classroom, but it would cut down on the cost of this separate school.

Yes, Madison has some of these children, but a large percentage are from Granite City, Collinsville and Edwardsville.

Mr. Briggs was the man who started using NIMBY — just because I didn't want to go see the classrooms and the school.

I have seen classrooms in Venice-Madison, St. Mary's, St. Teresa, Assumption High, Edwardsville grade and high schools, Granite City, St. Louis University, University of Illinois, Southern Illinois University and McKendree College.

If they want name-calling, which I think is dirty politics and stinks, their jobs and salary come from all of us. Think what they are saying in print. We are concerned.

We have two aldermen, John Hamm and Mike Vrabec; neither one wants to represent the people.

Regardless of what they think they were elected to serve the people.

America has many 'underused' citizens: people who have a variety of handicaps

To the editor:

Just about everyone in Illinois knows that the University of Illinois men's basketball team lost to the University of Michigan by the narrowest of margins in one of the Final Four games of the 1989 NCAA national championship.

Hardly anyone knows about a victory scored by the University of Illinois that is in many ways more heartening.

The University of Illinois men's wheelchair basketball team won the national championship, defeating Temple University of Philadelphia.

And the Illinois women's wheelchair team lost in the national finals to Minnesota.

I am frankly less interested in whether they won or lost than the fact they were playing.

It is a powerful demonstration of the potential of those who use wheelchairs.

There was a day when people assumed that if you had a major disability, you were destined to a life of existence but not much more.

That people who are blind or deaf or who have other disabilities can make major contributions is a reality that more and more are gradually understanding.

Through the visibility of athletics, the University of Illinois and other schools are demonstrating the capabilities of underused citizens.

I happened to see Sen. Bob Dole on television the other day, talking about people with disabilities. Bob lost the use of his right arm during World War II. Yes, he's disabled.

But, yes, the minority leader also contributes immensely to the nation.

Hundreds of thousands of people read the writings of Henry Kissinger, book editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, but probably fewer than 1 percent of those who read his column know that he is deaf. Paul Scher, national manager for rehabilitation services for Sears in Chicago, is blind. Susan Suter, who had polio, is director of the Illinois Department of Public Aid.

Yes, I'm proud of the University of Illinois wheelchair teams and their coach Brad Hedrick.

But I'm equally proud of those unknown university administrators who decided to have a team, to make the campus accessible for those in wheelchairs — and to make the campus visibly aware that people with disabilities have great potential, along with all other people.

I am proud to be a sponsor of a bipartisan bill introduced in the Senate May 9 — the Americans with Disabilities Act — to guarantee that all of our citizens with disabilities have a chance to use their potential. I hope we have the good sense to pass it quickly.

An underused resource in the nation is all the people with disabilities — some disabilities visible and some not visible.

We will help the economy of the nation if we do what is both humanitarian and right.

Easter Seal Society tops list for patient services

For the third year running, the Easter Seal Society tops the list of voluntary health organizations as the agency that allocated the largest amount of program dollars — $152,675,000 nationally — for direct patient services.

The audited financial report shows that Easter Seals allocated 93 percent of its total for all program expenses on direct patient services — helping people of all ages and disabilities to achieve maximum independence. A National Health Council (NHC) study, released recently and dated March 1989, reports that American voluntary health agencies spent a record $1.6 billion to combat disease and disability in 1987, the latest year for which uniform audited data are available.

"Report on Voluntary Health Agency Revenue and Expenses, FY 1987" provides key financial information on 34 reporting agencies.

These NHC members represent the nation's largest voluntary health organizations.

According to Carol Wike Nudo, executive director of the Easter Seal Society of Southwestern Illinois, "Easter Seals is proud of its service record and is challenged each year to continue providing the quality programs that we know have helped people with disabilities reach their highest level of independence."

"We can only do this because of the enormous support the agency receives from individuals and corporations in the community."

Cruse establishes week honoring role of city clerk

A proclamation establishing May 7-13 as Municipal Clerk's Week has been issued by Granite City Mayor Von Dee Cruse.

"The office of the municipal clerk, a time-honored and vital part of local government, exists in countries throughout the world," Cruse said.

"This office consistently and efficiently serves its local legislative body, the municipal staff, and the general public by recording the actions of the council, commissions, and committees; maintaining them for reference and inspection; and preserving them for the historical continuity that can be passed to future municipal officials and staff members."

"The office most often performs one or more additional important functions including election administration, finance management, records administration, and general administrative services."

"The clerk and his staff have, through dedicated effort and a sense of professionalism, continuously updated their skills and technical knowledge to prepare for the challenges of the 1990s."

Robert Stevens is the city clerk of Granite City.

Planning director nominated to Healthcare Executives College

Robert L. Mackin, director of strategic planning at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, was recently admitted to nominee status in the American College of Healthcare Executives.

The college is a Chicago-based international professional society representing more than 21,000 healthcare executives. This year, the college celebrates its 55th anniversary.

Mackin has been at SEMC for seven years, and strategic planning director for three years. To become a nominee, he demonstrated his educational preparation and commitment to the healthcare field through an extensive application process.

Other levels of achievement in the college include membership status, which requires the meeting of further application requirements and passing an extensive written and oral examination; and fellowship, the highest level of achievement.

Fellowship requires a specified number of years of service, continuing professional development, demonstration of leadership, and completion of an original, detailed project by the candidate.

900,000 residents over 65 still have driver's licenses throughout Illinois

The following article is by Secretary of State Jim Edgar:

Driving a motor vehicle gives many senior citizens the mobility they need to enjoy their independence. Nearly 900,000 licensed drivers in Illinois are age 65 and older and more than 110,000 are at least 80 years old.

During May, which is Older Americans Month, Illinois seniors are reminded that vision changes over the years.

The American Optometric Association recommends that older drivers recognize their limitations and confine driving to places, speeds and hours in which they feel comfortable and competent.

The Secretary of State's Senior Citizens, Human Resources and Veterans Department provides a free Rules of the Road review course that gives drivers the knowledge and confidence needed to pass the renewal examinations. The course also improves driving skills, promotes highway safety and provides these safety tips for older drivers:

1. Get the big picture while driving by watching the cars and the road ahead. Look both left and right for vehicles, children, animals and other hazards. Glance frequently at the rearview mirror and instrument panel, and be aware of your vehicle's blind spot.

2. Keep pace with the traffic flow. Driving too slowly can be just as dangerous as driving too fast.

3. Before driving, learn the side effects of any drug you may be using, including antihistamines. Certain medications can have an adverse effect on driving by interfering with muscular coordination or vision.

The Rules of the Road review course is free and available to every Illinois motorist. For additional information, call the Senior Citizens, Human Resources and Veterans Department at 1-800-252-2904.

"Some choice.
Heavy bleeding and unbearable cramps, or a hysterectomy."

Now you have another option.

DePaul Health Center's new laser surgery techniques are providing alternatives for women who don't want to be sidelined while suffering for days each month, and who are frightened at the thought of a hysterectomy.

This outpatient laser program is eliminating the need for a hysterectomy for many women who suffer from such problems as excessive menstrual flow, severe pelvic pain, infertility, or pain during intercourse.

Physicians at DePaul are treating bleeding by using a laser to remove the uterine lining while leaving the uterus in place. Other surgical procedures use lasers to effectively treat fibroid tumors, endometriosis, or surface lesions.

In most cases, patients return home the day of surgery.

Treatment for abnormal bleeding requires no incision, and patients report that their recovery period is similar to that of a D & C...two days.

Pelvic pain, endometriosis and fibroid tumor treatments make use of small incisions, and recovery time is usually one week or less.

DePaul's laser surgery is proving to be a solution for many women for whom the standard treatments with hormones or a D & C have proven ineffective, and whose symptoms continue.

It appears to offer a far safer alternative to hysterectomy, which is second only to Cesarean section as the most common surgery in this country.

And, the typical charge is less than half the cost of a traditional hysterectomy.

For more information on laser surgery as an alternative to a hysterectomy for treating excessive monthly flow or pain, call the oldest, most experienced and most advanced laser program in St. Louis at (314) 344-6040.

Car care

Car-care test track: Can you pass this auto quiz?

The best drivers are those who are most conscientious about the upkeep of their cars, the Car Care Council says. And these usually are the people who are the most knowledgeable about their vehicles, it adds.

The following quiz was developed by the council to help motorists test their car-care knowledge. Answers and explanations are provided.

1. How far should your headlights project for safe driving: a) 200 feet b) 300 feet c) 400 feet d) none of the above.

2. When your car burns oil, it usually is because of: a) worn piston rings b) fouled spark plugs c) worn valve guides d) all of the above.

3. Aunt Minnie is a city dweller commuting three miles to work. She has driven less than 6,000 miles in two years. Based on that kind of use, Minnie should change the oil at: a) 16,000 miles b) 8,000 miles c) 6,000 miles d) none of the above.

4. Some 1989 cars are equipped with: a) no distributor b) no carburetor c) no shock absorbers d) no fan belt e) all of the above are correct.

5. A clunking sound from the front of your front-wheel drive car forewarns you of impending failure of: a) the fan clutch b) CV joint c) a brake hose d) all of the above.

6. You are in a snow bank. The best way to get out is to: a) rev up the engine while shifting rapidly back and forth between "drive" and "reverse" in order to rock the car free b) allow the wheel that has lost traction to spin fast enough to melt the ice c) deflate the tires for added traction d) all of the above e) none of the above.

7. You waited too long to replace a leaking radiator hose and lost a lot of coolant. Overheating damaged the: a) radiator b) transmission c) exhaust system d) all of the above e) none of the above.

8. Radiator fans on many new cars are powered by: a) electricity b) wind c) water pump pressure.

9. You see a small puddle of brake fluid at the right front wheel. You check the fluid reservoir and find it is only half full. You should: a) add a thicker grade of brake fluid b) add fluid and have the system inspected for leaks c) install new brake linings d) all of the above.

10. Night driving requires special caution. After dark the fatal accident rate: a) doubles b) triples c) quadruples.

ANSWERS:
1. (b) is correct. Improperly adjusted headlights can be dangerous. Adjustment is a simple procedure. How's dark the night? 2. (a) and (c) are correct. Oil burning generally leads to fouled spark plugs, but it is not the cause. Radiator fans on many new cars are powered by: a) electricity b) wind c) water pump pressure.

3. (d) is correct. Aunt Minnie's type of driving is considered "severe service," requiring more frequent maintenance intervals. The correct answer would be 3,000 miles.

4. (e) is correct. Thanks to technology, cars paradoxically are more complex in some respects but simpler in others.

5. (b) is correct. Front-wheel drive cars have several of these CV joints, covered with protective rubber boots to keep grease in and dirt out. They should be inspected periodically and serviced as needed.

6. (e) is correct. Rocking the car as described in (a) could damage the transmission. Do it gently.

7. (b) is correct. The automatic transmission is cooled by the engine cooling system. Severe overheating could damage both the engine and the transmission.

8. (a) is correct. Electric radiator fans save space and fuel.

9. (b) is correct. Investigate leaking brake fluid at once.

10. (b) is correct. Check lights and windshield wipers; be sure you can see and be seen. Slow down after dark.

9 or 10 right: Congratulations. You are a knowledgeable car owner.

7 or 8 right: Passing.

6 or below: The council recommends you become better acquainted with your car.

5. (b) is correct. Front-wheel drive cars have several of these CV joints, covered with protective rubber boots to keep grease in and dirt out. They should be inspected periodically and serviced as needed.

6. (e) is correct. Rocking the car as described in (a) could damage the transmission. Do it gently.

7. (b) is correct. The automatic transmission is cooled by the engine cooling system. Severe overheating could damage both the engine and the transmission.

POWERED BY A 135-HORSEPOWER DOHC 16-valve engine, the Galant GS comes standard with Mitsubishi's exclusive ACTIVE-ECS electronically controlled suspension to manage ride and handling.

Motor Trend magazine selects Galant as 'Import Car of Year'

The 1989 Galant, marketed by Mitsubishi Motor Sales of America Inc., has been named "Import Car of the Year" by Motor Trend magazine.

The four-door, front-drive compact touring sedan competed against 13 new import products from Japan and Germany. It was cited by Motor Trend as excelling in a number of the publication's pre-determined testing criteria, including performance, comfort and overall value.

In addition, Motor Trend as well as Sport Truck magazine chose Mitsubishi's new Montero four-door as the "Best Buy in a Sport/Utility Class."

The "Import Car of the Year" competition consists of both objective and subjective testing. Motor Trend gathers data on acceleration, braking, skid-pad and slalom performance for each of the products considered in the competition. This is combined with the views of editors following individual test driving in a diverse range of environments.

The final test results were tabulated by the accounting firm of Arthur Young & Co. The full evaluation appeared in the magazine's March issue.

The 1989 Galant was first introduced as a 1988 model in Japan, where it received Japan's "Car of the Year" award — an honor bestowed by a panel of Japanese automotive engineering professors, commentators and journalists. Galant debuted in the United States in mid-1988.

The front-drive Galant blends a chassis tuned for excellent road manners and smooth ride characteristics with a refined interior and a choice of state-of-the-art 2.0-liter engines. It is offered in three distinct trim levels — Standard, "LS" luxury and "GS" luxury/sport.

In the Standard Galant, a standard powertrain is a 102-horsepower SOHC (single overhead camshaft) engine with electronic multiport fuel injection, mated to a five-speed manual transmission. A four-speed automatic overdrive transmission is available.

Convenience features include remote trunk and fuel-lid releases with valet trunk lock-out, dual remote mirrors, digital quartz clock, center console with drink holder, tilt steering column, and a vanity mirror on the passenger-side visor.

The LS edition adds a wide variety of luxurious refinements. These include velour upholstery, power door locks, power windows with driver-side Auto Down, a sophisticated electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission and a six-speaker audio entertainment system with power antenna.

Other additions to the LS include power dual remote mirrors, turbine-design full wheel covers, center armrests front and rear, variable intermittent windshield wipers, cruise control and a six-way adjustable driver's seat.

The flagship of the Galant line — the GS edition — was developed for drivers seeking a sports sedan offering performance, comfort and convenience. Powered by a DOHC (dual overhead camshaft) 16-valve engine producing 135 horsepower, the Galant GS offers distinctive exterior styling cues and an ergonomically designed interior.

Good fuel helps prevent pings

By Peter Bohr, Carline

The following letter recently was sent to Road & Track magazine:

"Dear Road & Track: My Toyota MR2 pings during acceleration on warm or hot days. The dealer service department has checked the timing and says it's right on. Various brands of premium unleaded fuel haven't helped. Do you have any suggestions?"

MOL, Pleasanton, Calif.

We've been getting a lot of letters lately from readers complaining about engine pinging, or knock, worse, about engine surging, or stumbling, stalling and reduced fuel economy.

The cars owned by these readers have a couple of things in common: They're all quite new and they have fuel-injected engines.

On modern cars, fuel injection systems controlled by on-board computers have just about sent old-fashioned carburetors the way of rumble seats and running boards. Fuel injection is really a marvelous process.

Like a carburetor, a fuel injector mixes fuel and air, and then sends the mixture to the engine's combustion chambers where it's burned to produce power. But fuel injectors are more precise than carburetors about sending just the right amount of mixture.

This gives better engine response and better fuel economy, with fewer exhaust pollutants.

The computer acts as a symphony conductor; it directs the fuel injection system and the car's ignition system to work in concert. If the fuel injection system sends the wrong mix of fuel and air, or if the ignition sends the spark to ignite the mixture at the wrong moment, the mixture will explode instead of burning evenly. You'll hear the explosion as a knocking or metallic pinging noise when you accelerate.

As the reader suggests, having a mechanic adjust faulty spark timing can sometimes eliminate pinging. Octane fuel also can be the culprit; switching to a premium, high-octane grade that gives a more even burn can help. An engine's octane requirements can vary with the weather, too. But the reader seems to be aware of all that.

His Toyota has Bosch L-Jetronic fuel injection. The big problem with fuel injection is that it's very sensitive to contaminants, poor-quality fuel. Water or minute particles of dirt can clog the little nozzles or injectors that squirt the fuel into the combustion chambers. Moreover, poor-quality fuel eventually can cause deposits to build up on the backs of the engine's intake valves. The deposits soak up fuel and can also alter the air flow into the combustion chambers. In either case, the engine doesn't receive the right amount of the air-fuel mixture, and it may ping or misfire.

If the reader has a mechanic replace or even remove and clean the fuel injectors or the valves, he probably faces a hefty expense. But if the deposits are heavy, that may be his only recourse.

However, if he's lucky, he might solve the problem by simply pouring a bottle of a concentrated additive into his car's tank. One formulated to clean away the deposits. Several auto-makers sell their own while others recommend Technon, sold at Chevron and Gulf gas stations.

To prevent a recurrence, it's important to always use a high-quality fuel. That doesn't necessarily mean a high-octane, premium grade; octane ratings and quality are different matters.

The reader can buy either regular or premium gasoline, depending on his car's octane requirements. But he should stick with a name brand of gasoline, preferably one with a deposit-removing additive. (For instance, Chevron's gasoline also contains Technon.) And he should certainly avoid gasoline containing alcohol because it promotes carbon deposits.

If you own a fairly new car with fuel injection and have experienced poor running, Road & Track would like to know about it. Please drop me a note stating your car's make, model and year and engine option, as well as the brand and grade of fuel you use, and if you've resolved the problem. Address your card or letter to: Peter Bohr, Road & Track, 1499 Monrovia Ave., Newport Beach, Calif. 92663.

Kids shell out big bucks for Ninja turtle heroes

By Richard Zacks
Staff affiliate

Back in 1983, 21-year-old Kevin Eastman, fresh from flipping burgers and bored of watching television, scribbled out a masked turtle carrying Ninja weapons. His video-game buddy, Peter Laird, dubbed it "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle."

Since that time, the twosome has collected an astounding $83 million in licensing fees from products ranging from toys to electronic talking toothbrushes. The turtles' television cartoon was ranked No. 1 during the February sweeps rating period in attracting kids ages 2 to 11 among weekly first-run syndicated shows.

The live-action figurines were the seventh hottest selling toy of 1988. In home video, the turtles now are busting up the monopoly on top-selling kid-vid long held by Disney releases. Turtle videos recently nabbed three of the top 10 slots on the Video Insider magazine kid-vid charts.

Who are these green hero guys? Where did they come from?

This foursome took life when an unlucky boy dropped his pet turtles into the New York City sewer and they fell into a puddle of radioactive waste. Each bears the name of a Renaissance artist — Leonardo, Michelangelo, Donatello, Raphael — and boasts his own Ninja fighting specialty.

In each adventure, they follow the orders of a Japanese master, transformed into a giant rat, who is battling the evil Shredder, a handsome villain. Tagging along is the curvaceous cub television reporter, April O'Neil.

The green do-gooders somehow combine Zorro, Errol Flynn, Don Knotts, River Phoenix, Yogi Berra and Dr. Seuss, spawning a combination about as weird as the pizza and cornflakes they eat for breakfast.

Creators Eastman and Laird, using a tax refund and $700 borrowed from an uncle, self-published their first issue in May 1984, a black-and-white spoof comic.

They sold out the 3,000 copies of that 1984 creation and now each black-and-white issue sells about 80,000 copies — still chicken feed compared to 450,000 per color issue of Marvel's "The Uncanny X-Men."

But through licensing, "Ninja Turtles" has taken on a life of its own. Playmates toy company, wanting to rack up big sales of the action figures, decided to commission a cartoon miniseries to help promote them. The five-part series ran between Christmas and New Year's Eve 1987 racking up gigantic ratings, prompting the companies involved to create a weekly television series.

This fall, it goes into daily syndication from Group W Broadcasting. This Christmas, a full-length $16 million live action movie with costumes by Jim Henson's Creature Shop is due.

THE TEENAGE MUTANT Ninja Turtles are busting out on video.

Levee Line bus operating again

Bi-State's Levee Line, the free bus loop that circles through downtown St. Louis including the Riverfront, has resumed service.

The route connects the Gateway Arch, Laclede's Landing, St. Louis Center, Union Station, Busch Stadium and most points in between. The line will operate seven days a week, with buses running 10 minutes to 20 minutes apart, through Christmas Eve.

The Levee Line last year carried an average of 38,500 passengers per month. Downtown St. Louis Inc. contributed $39,000 toward this year's estimated operating costs of $156,000.

Local organist takes his Fox Show on road

Eden United Church of Christ will present Jack Jenkins, resident organist of St. Louis' Fabulous Fox, in an "Afternoon Triple Feature," including a "Back to Boogie" organ concert and two silent movies with live organ accompaniment.

The program will be played on an 1927 Wicks Organ at 4 p.m. May 21 in the sanctuary of Eden Church, 903 N. Second St., Edwardsville.

Jenkins of Granite City is also the cathedral organist at the Scottish Rite in St. Louis. Jenkins is well-known to area audiences and is a member of the St.

Louis Theatre Organ Society and the Gateway East Chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

Jenkins' recording credits include a sold-out disc, "The Fabulous Fox," and "Putting on the Ritz at the Fox," still available on cassette. Both recordings were made at the Fabulous Fox.

The "Back to Boogie" concert will feature Jenkins' own, theater-style arrangements of "Joyful, Joyful," "Do Lord," "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "The Son of God Goes Forth to War."

In addition, there will be several Victorian vignettes and the popular "Bugle Call Rag" and "Bow Wow Blues."

Two silent movies will follow the concert feature and will be accompanied by Jenkins.

The first film will be the "Phantom of the Opera," starring Lon Chaney in the 1925 thriller. It is a condensed version of the lengthy original.

The second film will be a short Laurel and Hardy comedy "Two Tars" (or "Two Sailors").

Admission for the program is free. Ramp and elevator access are provided at Eden Church.

Parking is in the lot in front of the building (between Main and Second streets) or on surrounding streets.

Ragtime jazzes up riverfront

Today's most renowned Ragtime musicians will gather at the Goldenrod Showboat to perform at the 25th Annual National Ragtime Festival, this year dedicated to the late Frank C. Pierson, who founded the festival in 1965. The five-day-long celebration begins June 7 aboard the Goldenrod.

Returning this year to help celebrate the 25th anniversary are such Ragtime greats as Max Morath, Neville Dickie, Banu Gibson and her New Orleans Hot Jazz Orchestra, the original Salty Dogs with Lew Green and Carol Leigh, The Elite Syncopators, South Frisco Jazz Band, Dick Zimmerman and Ian Whitcomb, State Street Ramblers and the Red Rose Ragtime Band.

Hosting the festival for their 25th year will be the St. Louis Ragtimers. The Goldenrod Jazz Band will be joining the Ragtimers as co-hosts, as it did for the first time in 1968.

Kicking off the celebration, as it has for the past 12 years, will be a local group, Tiger Rag Forever Jazz Band.

Another St. Louis favorite, The Jazz Incredibles, featuring Jean Kittrell, returns in 1989 along with many other local piano players and musicians.

For ticket information, the Goldenrod can be called at (314) 621-3311.

Your Suburban Journal Invites You To Be A Part Of St. Louis History This June 11.

The Suburban Journals and the Missouri Historical Society are putting together a St. Louis Family Album to celebrate our great city's 225th Anniversary, and we'd like to include a photo of YOUR family. After all, you're an important part of St. Louis history.

The celebration starts at noon on June 11 at the History Museum in Forest Park. Pack an old fashioned picnic lunch and bring your family to visit the museum's special exhibit on the founding of St. Louis, "La Ville de Pain Court: St. Louis 1764-1820."

Drop off a current family photo attached to this Official Family Photo Album Page when you visit the exhibit. We'll put every family photo into our "St. Louis Family Album 1989." Then, we'll put the album safely away for 25 years. In 2014, on the 250th Anniversary of St. Louis, we'll place it on exhibit, so you can see exactly how you and everybody else looked way back in 1989.

Sponsored by Suburban Journals and the Missouri Historical Society

If you can't make it to the picnic in Forest Park, mail your photo to The Suburban Journals, St. Louis Family Album, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, MO 63131. In either case, completely fill out the information in the box.

Sorry, no photos can be returned. All photos become the property of the Missouri Historical Society. No slides, no instant camera photos. Color prints and black and white prints only.

Go down in history! Get your family together and take a current picture! Then, join us on June 11 at The St. Louis History Museum (The Jefferson Memorial) on the north side of Forest Park near DeBallivere.

BOB BAKER of Troy was recognized for bowling a 300 game in the Sunday Men's Catholic League at Bowland. He also received a trophy for the highest average (261), for the highest series (741) and for being the most improved bowler for the 1988-89 season.

DAVID CHAPMAN won the Bowling Review Sportsmanship Award at Bowland last week. It is presented annually to the youth bowler who displays good sportsmanship on and off the lanes. Chapman, 17, is the son of Jackie and Gerry Chapman.

can play better the next time, we've got a shot to beat them."

But there must be some concern about momentum going into the regional.

"Our schedule has put us through cycles all season," Davis said. "But our main concern is to get ready for the regional tournament. I mean, Triad is a pretty good ballclub, but we've got a chance to beat them."

"They seeded us seventh, but there's not a lot of difference between the teams rated fourth through seventh at the regional, so I'm just not ready to throw the towel in yet."

Triad coach Kerry Baugher still has respect for the Lady Warriors.

"Granite City has a good team, and don't let their seeding fool you," he said. "You get into a tight game with them and they'll give you problems."

Mindy Holt missed both games against Triad because of severe chest pains she suffered late Tuesday night. The diagnosis on her was still not known at press time, and her playing status for the rest of the year is up in the air.

Winters missed the Collinsville game with the chicken pox, but returned to the lineup Wednesday and played both games.

At Collinsville, the Lady Kahoks scored three in the bottom of the seventh for the win. That overshadowed a spectacular day for Michelle Bequette. The junior catcher had two home runs — including a grand slam — and six RBIs, but it wasn't enough. Pawlak suffered the loss on Kari Grakovich's single in the seventh to drive in winning pitcher Angie Gebhard, whom the Warriors hit hard after being no-hit by her in Granite City last month.

Miners

The Hogans are amazing. Neither has played baseball competitively since 1987. But Jamie ripped a single on his first at-bat against lefty Joe McHallow, perhaps the best pitcher in this league. Jamie later broke up John Parke's no-hit bid with a leadoff homer in the seventh inning of the nightcap. Tim hit the ball hard a couple of times and made a circus catch in center field.

The Mon-Clair League is now made up of three four-team divisions. The Miners are in the Madison Division along with East Alton, Edwardsville and Highland. They also compete in the Metro East Night League on Wednesdays. Mon-Clair games are Sunday double-headers at 1:30 p.m. Both games are seven innings. The Wednesday games are single nine-inning affairs at 7:30. When the high school season is over, the Miners will likely move their games to Varsity Field, although Maxville Field is an enjoyable place to watch a game.

DeFew and Moad wish to thank the local businesses which have agreed to sponsor the team (each uniform has the name of one of the sponsors on the back): Knights of Columbus, Irwin Chapel, Morris B. Chapman and Associates, National, the Moose Lodge, Magna Bank, Koetting Ford, Sandy's Wallpaper, Granite Sheet Metal, Vesci Distributing, Pratt & Callis PC and P & S Tire.
